Summer 2012 – Spring 2015
B.S., Computer Science: Computer Game Design
Graduating GPA: 3.60

PROJECTS

A Room Too Far (C#, Unity):

- Creating a dungeon-building interface that allows users to build levels, and then upload them to our team's game server for play on an arcade cabinet. Part of A Room Too Far, my senior game design project, being completed with a team of nine.

Erowid Data Scraping/Visualization (JavaScript):

- Coding a web scraper that programmatically searches the Erowid Experience Vaults, parses through the results, and amasses the data needed for the visualization.

SwollTracker (Java, AndroidSDK)

- With a team of two, wrote an Android app in Java that assists the user with their gym workouts. Coded an automatic rep-counter that uses the inbuilt accelerometer to detect repetitions.

AI for StartCraft: Brood War (C++)

- Using a script-injection tool for StartCraft: Brood War, implemented a decision tree for three Terran Vultures. Caused the units to disable a large Zerg base using kiting tactics.

Voxel Arena (C#, Unity)

- With a team of two, Implemented a 2-player arena deathmatch that uses voxel terrain as the playspace, and allows players to both destroy and construct terrain with their weapons.

Personal projects (All in C#, Unity):

- Procedural dance generator that moves the limbs of a humanoid ragdoll to keep itself balanced upright, and dance.
- Interactive planetary orbit simulation that demonstrates how orbital paths gradually change in reaction to the gravitational forces of other bodies.
- Simulation of a swarm of bees
